Childhood Illness Service Project Ideas

Listed below are some service project ideas addressing the issue of Childhood Illness. If you decide to do one of them, be sure to check with the non-profit organization you are planning to work with to make sure the project would be something that they could use. We will add more project ideas as we find them.

Sending Love - When people are going through hard times, it helps a lot to get messages of love and support. If you have seen on the news that there are people who are sad or need help, you can use this project to show your care. Take a few minutes of time with kids and teens to spread awareness for those in need, and empower your them to do something about it.

Caps For Kids With Cancer - Going through chemotherapy can cause children to lose their hair. Having a new cotton or soft fleece cap or hat can keep them warm and make them feel not as self-conscious. Or you could even learn to knit and make one yourself.

Create Books— Kids going through serious illnesses can sometimes have to sit for hours at the hospital and Doctors office. Create books of jokes, funny stories, funny poems that can be handed out to these children.

Activity Bags – Create a simple activity bag for children who are dealing with illness. It might include a coloring book or activity book that you create from free printable coloring and activity pages from the internet or ones that you create yourself. Include an uplifting note for them.

Toiletry Care Kits - Collect toiletries and personal items and then pack individual bags for families traveling with children who have serious medical needs
